Mrs. HOWARD, wife of Insp. Howard, of G. division of the N. W. M. P., Fort Saskatchewan, died suddenly and unexpectedly yesterday morning. Mrs. Howard had been ill for some time, but was thought to be recovering when she died suddenly.

YUKON BOUND.
CYRUS GRESH and F. P. Stout, of Milton, Pennsylvania arrived on last train, bound for the Yukon.
Messrs. W. F. Langworthy, F. H. Braine, Geo. Woolley, A. M. Watt and W. Marks, are purchasing their outfit and preparing to join in the pilgrimage to the Yukon. Lumber for their boat went out this morning. They expect to start this week.
Geo. Essi, L. Kuickerbocker, and Frank Wishart of Duluth, and A. Thompson of Calgary, start to-morrow for the Landing on their way to the Yukon. They have not yet decided on their route beyond Ft. Simpson. It may be up the Liard or down to Peel river.
C. ROUSE, A. Holmes, J. T. Moody, Geo. Fraser, C. J. Smith of Fresno, California, will start to-morrow for the Landing on their way to the Yukon by the Mackenzie route. They intend to take the Liard river route from Fort Simpson. They hope to reach the Liard before or during the winter.
W. A. Foote, B. F. Hough, E. E. Bonn, Phil. Bellevue, and Chas. Hall of Duluth, who arrived on Monday last, start for the Landing to-morrow to take the water route to the Yukon. They will decide at Fort Simpson whether to take the Liard or Peel river. All the parties going by boat take two years' supplies.
J. WILDER CATE, T. J. Kelly, C. C. Hag, W. F. Haig, L. P. Macdonald, A. S. Cagwin, Bert Stevens, O. L. Inglis, G. R. Walton, F. R. Dunlop, H. H. Quick, W. P. Housley, L. Boot, J. G. Delany, H. Rustigan, K. Emirzian, W. R. King, and Mr. and Mrs. Garner, all of Fresno, California, who arrived last week, have decided to take the overland route by the Peace and Liard rivers and the Peel branch of the Yukon to the Klondike. They have purchased about 80 horses and expect to start on Thursday.
ANOTHER party of pilgrims to the Yukon consisting of Dr. Macdonald of Calgary and Messrs. S. McNeil, F. G. Taylor and Alex. Adamson, from here, left on Saturday for the Landing with a load of supplies. At the Landing they will join Capt. Segers and W. D. Matheson, who preceded them to that point, and have been engaged in constructing a boat there. The boat was expected to be completed by Saturday and would be put in the water to soak yesterday. F. M. Robertson, F. A. Hardisty, M. Sutherland and Alfred McLeod are also members of the same party, making in all 10.
By last Monday's train there arrived a party of 57 prospectors from California. All bound for the new gold fields by the all Canadian route. The party consists of A. S. Cagwin, J. T. Moody, T. R. Dunlop, C. C. Hag, W. F. Haig, Wilber Cate, O. L. Inglis, Bert Stevens, G. R. Walton, C. J. Smith, B. L. Boot, H. H. Quick, Jas. Clayton, Geo. Rouse, W. P. Housley, T. J. Kelly, Alex. Holmes, L. P. Macdonald, Geo. Fraser, and Jas. Delany who arrived on last train. The party first intended to go by the all land route per pack horses but some have since decided to go by the rivers. About half will go each way.
PLAIN DEALER, South Edmonton: Messrs. F. and H. Jenner, A. E. Schaffer and A. S. Weeks, of this place, expect to start to-day for Klondike via Athabasca and McKenzie rivers. They have built their boat for the journey at Walter's yard and will take it to the journey to Athabasca Landing. They built their boat because they could do it cheaper, quicker and better, than at the Landing. The construction of the craft is worthy of note as these men are experienced miners and know about what is necessary. It is a yawl having a 25-foot keel and 64-foot beam. The frame is of oak and the sides are of cedar. She is fitted with two pairs of oars and a sail for use on the lakes and large rivers. She will carry seven tons weight and draws very little water. The cost of building materials was about $35 and the labor would bring its total cost to about $300. They expect to take her right through to Dawson City.

FOUND DROWNED.
The body of Robt. McMillan, school teacher of Stony Plain, was found floating in the river here on Friday last, by the men on board the little supply steamer Daisy Bell.
The story of his death as nearly as can be ascertained, for the exact particulars will never be known, appears to be as follows:
During the summer vacation he constructed a gold washing machine which he operated on the river some distance up, and on Saturday the 7th instant started to float down the river on the scow upon which his machine was built, using a long handled shovel for a guiding sweep. At three o'clock in the afternoon he and his scow passed Conjouring creek where he was last seen by a number of miners on the bank. At four the scow was caught by miners at Bear's creek, 14 miles up the river from Edmonton, as it was drifting down the stream alone. It was thought by the men at Bear's creek to be a scow which had merely drifted away from some of the camps higher up and no importance was attached to the event until the body was found as stated, by the men on the Daisy Bell as she was on her weekly cruise up the river delivering supplies to the miners along the shore.
The body was discovered among some bushes on the water's edge about eleven miles upstream where it had floated with the eddies of the river. The steamer immediately returned to town bringing the body on board, which was left at Walter & Humberstone mill, pending identification. On the arrival of the police and coroner and on the evidence of F. McPhee, the body was fully identified as that of Robt. McMillan. It was not considered necessary to hold an inquest as it was apparent that deceased met his death by drowning. The interment took place on Saturday morning at the cemetery here.
Const. Ketchen went out to Stony Plain to-day to endeavor to ascertain the address of any of the deceased relatives in order that they may be communicated with.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, AUGUST 16th, 1897.

LIARD RIVER ROUTE.

The direct route from Edmonton to the Yukon lies up the valley of the Liard river. This is a desirable route not only as a means of reaching the Klondike, but also because on its head waters and also on those of the Pelly branch of the Yukon which interlock, there is a most promising outlook for the prospector, and this region can be reached much more easily from the east than the west side. In its late special issue the BULLETIN dealt with the Liard valley only as a land route. But as everyone is not in a position to take advantage of it as a land route it may not be out of place to state the facts regarding it as a water route, and as part of an all water route from the Athabasca Landing as well. In the description of the Mackenzie route to Peel river, Fort Simpson, 161 miles below Great Slave lake, at the mouth of the Liard, is mentioned. If it is desired to reach the Klondike it is better, having reached Simpson, to go on down the Mackenzie. But if the Pelly river is the point to be reached the Liard route is the best, and the course would be up that stream from Simpson all the way to Francis lake. The junction of the Nelson with the main stream of the Liard would be a common point for both land and water routes by the Liard. The land route would go from Peace river down the Nelson valley to or near the junction, and the water route would be up the river to the same point. The navigation from the Landing to Fort Simpson has already been described. From the Mackenzie at Simpson to the junction of the Nelson is stated by W. Ogilvie, D. L. S., to be 239 miles. For this distance the navigation of the river, suitable for steamboats is uninterrupted. In coming up the river from Fort Simpson, Mr. Ogilvie occupied about 10 days. The tracking is good throughout in low water, but in high water it is very difficult in places. It would seem that if this distance can be made in ten or fifteen days the river route to the mouth of the Nelson would be preferable as a means of landing a large amount of supplies at that point over the land route, at least until it has been improved. No doubt the mouth of the Nelson can be reached more quickly by pack horses lightly loaded following the direct route than by heavily laden boats taken down the Mackenzie and up the Liard, but where the quantity of supplies is an object, as it is to parties intending to make a long stay in the Yukon, the river route is to be preferred if the date in the season admits. In this connection it may be mentioned that Mr. Ogilvie found, from the journals of the Hudson's Bay Company at Liard and Nelson forts, that ice began to run in these rivers from Oct. 15th to Nov. 1st, and that the river set fast about ten days later. It may therefore be safely calculated that boats have until the 15th of October in which to get up the Liard. The navigation is good for 40 miles further up the Liard than the mouth of the Nelson, and within 40 miles of the Rocky Mountains. It is in this forty miles that the bad navigation which has given the Liard such an evil reputation occurs. From the commencement of the rapids on the Liard to Pelly river would be about 300 miles. For this part of the journey horses might be better than up stream navigation and for the Devil's portage, four miles, and the portage from Francis lake to Pelly river, 50 miles, would be almost indispensable. With the water not too high the rest of the trip could be at least as well made by boat, although up stream.

In McConnell's account of his exploration of the Liard in 1887 during which he came down stream from the junction of the Dease, he gives a particular account of the currents, rapids and portages in this part of the river. As he was coming down stream the danger was much greater than if he had been going up, and for the last twenty miles, which is the worst part, he had only a canvas canoe so that he had to make portages which would not have been necessary had he been coming up with a good boat. Being about the middle of July the water was at a rather high stage, which makes the navigation on that river all the more difficult up, and dangerous down stream. In the Grand Canon, he had to make five portages, but had the water not been so high or had he known the channel better he could have run them all with a good boat. In going up stream the Hudson's Bay Company used to take their boats through without portaging, but the work was difficult and dangerous.

At the Devil's portage, which is about thirty miles by land west of the entrance to the Grand Canon, loads and boats have to be portaged four miles, whether going up or down stream. This is the great impediment to the navigation of the Liard, as the road across the portage passes over a ridge 1,000 feet high. This makes the portaging of boats exceedingly difficult. But the miners who explored the river and the Hudson's Bay Company as well used to haul their boats across. McConnell left his wooden boat above the portage and built a canvas boat for the rest of the journey down the Liard.

Portage Brule, the next portage, is about forty miles above Devil's portage and twenty miles west of the Rocky Mountains, which are passed in good water. It is two miles long and level except at the east end where the ascent is 200 feet. Boats and loads are portaged both ways at this portage, but Mr. McConnell thinks he could have run the rapid in an empty boat.

Mountain Portage is about ten miles above Portage Brule and is half a mile long. Boats and loads have to be portaged. Mr. McConnell was informed, however, that he might have run the rapid had he known the channel.

Cranberry portage is the last one below the mouth of the Dease and is about seven miles above Mountain Portage. Here Mr. McConnell portaged the loads half a mile and let the boat down the rapids light.

In the 90 miles from the mouth of Dease river to Francis lake Prof. Dawson, who went up this stretch of the river at the same time that Mr. McConnell came down, had to make three small and easy portages and the navigation was not particularly difficult between. From these accounts, which are most reliable, it appears that the difficulties of the navigation of the Liard are confined to a stretch of about 90 miles from the entrance to the Grand Canon to Cranberry portage, in which there is a total portaging distance of not more than ten or twelve miles, and possibly not more than seven miles, and the particularly difficult and dangerous portion is comprised within a stretch of forty miles in the foot hills east of the mountains.

Gold bearing bars are found on the Liard from the Rocky Mountains upward and at Francis and adjoining lakes at the head waters of the Liard and also in the adjoining region at the headwaters of the Pelly, it would appear from Prof. Dawson's report that there are as good prospects for rich strikes as in any part of the Yukon region. The Cassiar mines lie 100 miles up the Dease and southward from its junction with the Liard, and the gold bearing Cassiar mountains lie southwest of the head of the Liard. Prof. Dawson mentions that a party of miners worked on a creek coming into the Liard about fifty miles above the junction of the Francis river which yielded nuggets worth as high as $10 each.

Supplies can be landed at the foot of the Grand Canon of the Liard more cheaply by the water than by the land route. Using this as a base of supplies, horses taken from Edmonton across country by the Peace and Nelson rivers could pack the 300 miles to the Pelly river and make good time, if it were not desired to use the navigation of the Liard. Or they could be used to pack past the 90 miles of bad water and across the 50 miles from Francis lake to Pelly river. For the rest of the distance the water route up the Liard would no doubt be cheaper and better than by pack horses, as there would be only three short portages. By using the 40 mile stretch of good water on the Liard from Devil's portage to Portage Brule the packing would be reduced to 35 miles below or east of and 15 miles above or west of the mountains, reducing the total packing between Edmonton and Pelly river 100 miles.

There is no question about the suitability of the several reaches of river from the Landing to the foot of the Grand Canon of the Liard for steamboat navigation, any more than for boats, and on the part of the route up the Liard a steamer would be a great advantage. However, until steamers are put on, boats can be used. The difficulty of reaching the Yukon makes it so desirable to get there. As the road becomes easier, the chances, which are the great present attraction, are snapped up. It is in the days of difficulty that courage and energy stand as good a chance as capital. As difficulties and risks are eliminated the percentage in favor of capital against individual effort increases. It is the difficulties that apparently stand in the way of the prospector that are his protection, if he only has the courage, energy, and luck to overcome them.

THROUGH ROUTE TO KHARTOUM.

A despatch of August 9th says: A column of troops commanded by Col. Hunter, of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition up the Nile, left Merani on July 29th, and attacked Abu Hamid at 5:30 a.m. on Aug. 6th, after an eighteen hours march. Severe house to house fighting followed and the place was captured by expeditionary force. Two British officers were killed during the fighting. Abu Hamid is the first objective point of the Anglo-Egyptian expedition's operations against Khartoum. The railway which has been extended along the Nile route from Wady Halfa will now be connected with Abu Hamid, from whence there is open water in the Nile to Berber and Khartoum, near which place Khalifa is concentrating his forces.

THE EDMONTON BRIDGE.

An Ottawa telegram of August 10th, says: F. Lemoine, of Montreal, the lowest tenderer for the Edmonton bridge work has been awarded the contract by the minister of public works. The figure is $36,500 and the work will have to be built by the middle of November.

POPULAR LAKE.

John Kennedy began harvest on Wednesday.

Mrs. Jellett and Mrs. Kinnaird, with their children, were visiting at Mr. Fielders on Tuesday.

Mrs. McDiarmid and others go to the landing to-day on a berry picking expedition. They will camp out on the journey, and will, no doubt, enjoy themselves even if berries prove scarce.

Quite a large party of Lizzie Kennedy's young friends helped her to celebrate her birthday, on Thursday. They all thoroughly enjoyed themselves in out and in-door games.

The school well is now being deepened. No doubt good water will be struck lower down. It has occurred to your correspondent that a gate at the southwest corner of the school yard would better accommodate more than half of the present school population than the present arrangement does.

The popular lake picnic was a splendid success in every sense of the word. The day was fine. There was a good attendance, an abundant supply of the choicest provisions, games to amuse those so inclined and shaded seats for those who preferred quieter comfort. Our popular M. L. A. spent his time diligently among the latter and we would predict the close approach of an election.

August 13, '97.

BEAVER LAKE EAST.

Crops are good, in some cases extra good. I regret to learn that Messrs. Haggard, Brown, King and Lennie, of the south end, had their crops destroyed by hail.

Messrs. John D. McAllister, of this place, and Ed. Dennis, of Birch Creek have purchased a threshing machine. Such a machine was much needed, and their enterprise deserves success.

Some scientists claim that the festive mosquito requires an atmosphere abounding in malarial poison. If this be true, the air at Beaver Lake must swarm with the germs of malaria.

They come and go—mostly the latter. Mr. and Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Livingstone left some time since. D. McAllister has returned from the Kootenay, and it is said that Sandy McAllister is on his way back.

Mrs. Walters and her twin babies, which are now a little more than a week old, are doing fine.

During a severe thunder shower that passed over here about a week ago Geo. Lemon had a horse killed by lightning.

A very heavy thunder storm accompanied by a great deal of wind passed over this district on Friday last, but no very serious damage was done.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mobly and son arrived in town on Friday last and started again to-day for Athabasca Landing. They expect to return again in a short time.

Mrs. W. F. Puffer, who went to Olds last week to visit friends there, met with a painful accident by her team running away and throwing herself and two children against a barb wire fence, cutting Mrs. Puffer very badly, but the children escaped with torn clothes.

BOWDEN.

Miss M. Moore leaves to-day for Ponoka, where she will teach for the remainder of the year.

H. S. Johnson, secretary of the White Swan creamery, leaves shortly for MacLeod, where he has secured a position.

O. A. Critchley, M. L. A., accompanied by Mrs. Critchley, visited the district the beginning of the week. They returned home on Tuesday's train.

The White Swan creamery has already manufactured about 15,000 lbs. of butter. The government separator has also been in operation for some time. Mr. A. Woodworth has charge.

Farmers are busy haying. During the last few weeks the weather has been all that could be desired for that purpose. Harvesting will start immediately, and the crops are magnificent.

George Hoover sold his effects by auction a few weeks ago, and intends leaving for the Crow's Nest pass shortly. It seems hard for Mr. Hoover to leave Bowden, and he will be missed as he is one of the oldest settlers in the settlement.

During the last few months some four or five houses have been robbed. The party who does the damage is apparently well posted in the district as he always visits vacant houses. The latest theft was made on Monday evening when Mr. Calder's whip was taken from his rig. Among those who lost property are: Mr. Hayden, Mr. De Pencer, Mr. Nolan and Mrs. Parker.

Inspector Calder paid us a visit last week. On Monday evening he met the ratepayers of the Bowden school district, who have been laying complaints against the trustees. In all probability the trustees will be disqualified and a new election take place. School trustees should make themselves familiar with the school ordinance, and thereby prevent many unnecessary squabbles.

ANGUS RIDGE.

The Klondike excitement is very high here.

Mr. Wilson, sec-treas., is busy erecting a new stable.

The weather is all that can be desired for haymaking.

Mr. Angus, who had a slight attack of inflammation, is regaining his usual health.

The BULLETIN has a true ring about it to keep Alberta to the front. It is to be hoped that the government will proceed immediately with a road from Edmonton to the Yukon. The Calgary & Edmonton railway shortens the distance of the work to be performed a good deal. Push the railway from Edmonton to the north. There is plenty of wheat in Alberta to feed the miners.

We would like to have a bi-weekly mail to Angus Ridge. Too much economy in the post office only dwarfs the intellect of the people. Give us the latest news, latest markets, &c. We believe the present postmaster general would attend to the matter if a petition giving reasons were presented. We are now in the 19th century. Everything is done in a hurry. No time to wait.

THE YUKON TRADE.

EDITOR BULLETIN.

The meeting called by our mayor on Saturday night, for the discussion of the advisability of our government adopting a route from Edmonton to the Klondike, was timely and good.

Although Edmonton, town proper, ought to have taken the initiative step in the matter of agitating for the opening up of an altogether Canadian route to the new gold fields, it added a great deal to the success of the local advocates of our route, that our sister settlements—Fort Saskatchewan and St. Albert—had already realized the situation and held meetings and acquired a great deal of valuable information favorably setting forth, not only the advisability, but the imperative necessity on their own behalf, on behalf of the Dominion as a whole, and the Northwest Territories in particular, that this wagon route should be opened up.

But the best argument in favor of this route, was the arrival of those thirty-odd argonauts or gold seekers from California on the train before last, who realized the geographical advantages of Edmonton as the nearest railway terminal, and the nearest and most natural route beyond, with fewer obstacles, and came to take advantage of it.

While the waterway from Athabasca Landing by way of the Pelly to the Pelly or Porcupine river may have its advantages over any of the Pacific routes by way of the passes through Alaska; yet it falls far short of supplying the wants of such a great mining centre as this already is; and with its further prospects of a brilliant future.

To confine ourselves to the shipment of horses, cattle and such like, they cannot be taken into that country at anything like moderate rates by the existing routes. These mines are not a thing of a few days. The limited gold fields of Cariboo are yet an actual fact, affording profitable labor to many, and contributing to the world's wealth in no small degree. The Imperial government—while yet British Columbia was a colony—realizing her duty to her as a colony, sent out sappers and miners and built a highway to her mines at a cost of six hundred thousand dollars. If a precedent is wanted for our federal government to encourage the Territories in development, refer to the above fact.

The roads in the Northwest are certainly very good as a whole, mainly because it is not hard to construct them, and while the Northwest government has been very liberal in its appropriations for constructions and repairs yet in cases of main roads they found them already made to their hands, through the enterprise of the pioneers and the Hudson's Bay Co. in particular.

Now this altogether Canadian overland route to the Yukon is, as I said before, an imperative necessity. All authorities agree that from Edmonton the next point to strike would be old Fort Assiniboine from there are a choice of routes, which will have to be demonstrated by an actual official exploration.

The road as far as Fort Liard at our meeting was proven to be a natural highway with the exception of the river crossings, and a few cuttings approaching and leaving streams. Ferries of course will, have to be provided over the large streams. And, Oh; what a glorious opportunity this will be for opening up of settlement for farmers as far north as the Liard. For prospectors it will give an opportunity that has never existed before to explore that great section of country that exists along the route.

It is the duty of every municipality, board of trade, M. L. A.'s, and members of parliament in the Northwest to advocate the construction of this overland route, in the form of a wagon road, that their constituents may dispose of their cattle and horses and other products of their farms at prices that may be remunerative to them and keep our southern neighbors from gathering in all the shekels.

YUKON TRAIL SURVEY.

Free Press August 10th: It has been learned that the survey party to be despatched to the Yukon country by the Dominion government will be in charge of a Mr. Clark, an eastern civil engineer, who will reach here this afternoon. While no definite information has been received by the authorities here, further than to notify local members of the party to be ready to leave on Tuesday, it is generally understood that the route to be surveyed is that overland from Edmonton. It is known that C. P. R. authorities in Montreal have been in correspondence with the interior department as to opening up that route, and on this it is assumed in local circles that the government is despatching a survey party to ascertain the feasibility of the route.

ATHABASCA LANDING.

J. F. Hurstall, of McLean's survey party, arrived from the Landing on Saturday to get an outfit for the Yukon. He will join J. Bain, who arrived some time ago from Winnipeg, and will go down the Athabasca. He leaves today and expects to get across Great Slave lake this fall. He will take the Peel river route. His boat will be of the build of the H. B. Co. inland or York boats with 16 feet keel, will carry 3,500 pounds and costs $40. In coming out he met W. H. Howey and party on Thursday evening, about twelve miles from the Landing. Their boat was ready and they are probably started by this time. Capt. Segers' boat would be completed to day or to-morrow. Messrs. F. G. Taylor and S. McNeill, of Segers' party, were met on Saturday morning near the Sturgeon river. Jenner and party were met a little this side of Vermilion on Friday with their boat and outfit and were getting on well. Riviere was still at the Landing with his band of 50 horses on the way to Slave lake. D. Cadzow, trader, was at the Landing, anxious to sell out to go to the Yukon. Also Dan Carey. The steamer Athabasca was up the river getting timber to renew the pier at the steamboat landing which had been taken out by high water. It is said that a new hull will be built for the steamer this winter, and that it will be shorter than the present one, so as to admit of her getting up Lesser Slave river.

A BOMB SHELL.

La Patrie, of Montreal, publishes a fac simile of the following agreement: "We the undersigned, Wm. Sharples, of the city of Quebec, and Hon. T. McGreevy, contractor, in same place, hereby agree to pay the shares of the Hon. A. P. Caron, Hon. H. L. Langevin, Hon. I. Dewdney and Hon. V. Robitaille for the purchase of lands in the Northwest, under agreement dated August 7, 1882, not to exceed $100,000, and to share equally with the above named in any profits that may accrue from the sale of said lands, after deducting the amount disbursed for them. Quebec, Nov. 2nd, 1882. Wm. Sharples, Thomas McGreevy."

BEAVER LAKE EAST.

An item in the BULLETIN stated that Mr. Hopgood had seen wheat over five feet in length on the west side. This is not so unusual an occurrence so far as wheat is concerned, but to see barley five feet long is unusual. It can be seen on this side.

A dispute about two colts, which has been going on for some time between Thos. A. Deby and J. Lafond, was settled lately by arbitration. Messrs. Morrison of this place, Dennis of Birch Creek and Hunt of the south end, were the arbitrators. Lafond had branded the colts, yet the arbitrators, after hearing all the evidence, decided in favor of Mr. Deby. Lafond pays the costs, which are pretty heavy.

Yukon gold is valued at 15.50 to $17 an ounce. The output for the past year is estimated at $2,000,000.

Judge McGuire, of Prince Albert, has been temporarily appointed judge of the Yukon district and will organize a civil and criminal court.

The Sheep Creek coal mine southwest of Calgary has been sold to an English company for $40,000. Mr. J. A. Bangs, barrister, owner of the mine, effected the sale through Mayor Orr, who has been corresponding with capitalists for some time. This mine is of a superior quality of cooking coal. The company are to begin operations without delay and to expend $300,000 in development.—Calgary Herald.
